Management Discussion and Analysis

For the Year ended December 31, 2025

(unaudited)

This report discusses the principal changes in the unaudited consolidated financial statement for the year ended December 31, 2025.

Economic Overview

Thailand's economy grew by 2.0% in 2025, slower than last year and remained below its potential. Although overall exports expanded by 10.0%, driven by front-loaded exports ahead of U.S. tariffs hike together with a rise in electronics exports in an artificial intelligence upcycle, the impact on industrial production and employment was limited with minimal reliance on local supply chains. In contrast, exporters using high local content, whose costs are primarily in Thai baht, were affected by the full-year Thai baht appreciation of 8.2%. The recovery in tourism also fell below expectations, particularly regarding Chinese tourists, which declined due to safety concerns and strong regional competition. Meanwhile, domestic demand remained subdued as private investment was slow, although the investment promotion policies began to attract capital into new industries like data centers and electronics. Private consumption also slowed down, reflecting a subdued recovery in labor income amidst high household debt. Furthermore, the economy faced many challenges, ranging from geopolitical conflicts, cybercrime and illegal money flows, and severe flooding in the North and South, notably the severe Level 4 disaster in Hat Yai, which caused major damage to property. In response to the weak economic outlook, the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) cut the policy rate by a total of 1.00% in 2025, ending the year at 1.25%. Commercial banks followed suit by lowering lending rates and offering other measures, such as relief measures for disaster victims, to support business operations, employment, and daily living conditions.

Given Thailand's long-standing structural weaknesses, the struggle to remain competitive in a changing global economy, and challenges regarding government efficiency, these pressures have led to cooperation among the public, private, and banking sectors under the 'Reinvent Thailand' platform. This collaboration has resulted in the launch of measures to tackle structural problems in a sustainable manner, including "Pid Nee Wai, Pai Tor Dai" program. It also includes measures starting in early 2026, such as the "SMEs Credit Boost" to enhance credit guarantees, as well as programs to provide funding and liquidity support for targeted industries, aimed at reducing debt burdens and strengthening financial conditions for both households and businesses.

The Bank and Its Subsidiaries' Overview Performance

The Bank and Its Subsidiaries' Performance for Year of 2025

Thailand's economy grew by 2.0% in 2025, remained below its potential. U.S. tariffs contributed to a slowdown in manufacturing sector amid intensified competition from lower-cost imported goods. Domestic demand was further pressured by severe natural diasters, border-related tensions, and cybercrime. Amid these challenges, the Bank continued to operate with prudence, maintaining a focus on disciplined asset quality management and ongoing customer assistance as well as providing support for customer durability adjustment, particularly for SMEs, to strengthen competitiveness and drive sustainable growth under the evolving global trade landscape.

Meanwhile, net interest income declined primarily due to market interest rate trend and the Bank's proactive debt restructuring efforts to support customers under a sustainable debt resolution framework.

The Bank's disciplined comprehensive cost management resulted in a Cost to Income Ratio of 40.3%, reduced from 42.6% in 2024, amid continuing investment in IT and digital capabilities to enhance competitiveness and support long-term growth. Thailand's economy in 2026 is expected to grow below 2% for the first time in nearly 30 years, excluding crisis periods, and to underperform regional peers. Domestically, economic policy implementation faces fiscal constraints amid a political transition following the general election.
